SUBJECT: South Anchorage Water Improvement Projects
Update for 455 Reservoir and 930 Reservoir Site Selections

In response to comments heard at various meetings with community councils, property owners, and HALO; AWWU will be changing its site selection strategy for the two reservoirs. The new process will build upon AWWU's existing site selection and conditional permitting review processes, and will work with a participative committee of local area residents to assist in a structured process to review and rank potential sites based on AWWU's goals and objectives, as well as selection criteria recommended by the committee.

Previous input from the community councils and neighbors will also be incorporated into the final selection criteria. At this time, AWWU is still in the process of developing details of its revised strategies to include the structuring of public participation. AWWU will keep the local community councils and neighborhoods apprised of the next steps once these have been formulated over the coming weeks.

AWWU is committed to:

1. Reviewing and answering the various public concerns raised.
2. The selection of the reservoir sites in a responsible manner.
3. Taking into account the community values of the local neighborhoods.

The continued future site-selection processes will not only need to be technically sound but will also need to result in selections that provide safe, clean, reliable water service to underserved areas of South Anchorage and the Anchorage Bowl for years well into the future. As we continue to undertake this process, AWWU encourages the community and its representatives to provide the project team with information that will help meet site-selection objectives.
